

Friday 17th September 2021

10: I can plan, draft, edit and publish a diary record, writing in the style of a character. 10

Today was an awful day, to say the least. Strangely, there was an unidentified aura in the air, which I can't seem to describe.

Obviously, today started like any other: I was suddenly awoken from my peaceful slumber by my abusive dad. It's been like it since my mother died. Why did she have to leave me? Living is just so hard for me now. With a great wallop around my face, he violently shook me from my slumber. My mother always used to say that I "slept like a log." Anyway that's enough of that. Grabbing me by the neck, my stupid dad threw me on the floor, and yelled at me to go and eat my breakfast. Obviously, none was there. Sometimes I swear he wants me to starve. Depressingly, I shuffled out the door and threw on my Nike Air Max, (which I had stolen from some dumb kid down the park).

Lighting a crumpled ciggy, I strode down the shabby street, and chucked my smoke on the floor. Not caring, I walked along. Finally arriving at Burgess Woods, I kicked up some of the autumn leaves, like a kid again. I cannot go back to being that nice kid again, not now. Realising what I was doing, I immediately froze, lit my cigarette and...

I felt an evil presence watching me. An unidentified aura surrounded me, as if it were awaiting me. Was this the Devil himself watching me? Panicking, I knew I had to get out of there, and fast. Sprinting to the nearest exit, my soulless heart beat rapidly, as I rushed to the daylight. Thinking about it, it was probably a dumb fox, thinking it could scare me. What am I doing with my life?

As I slowly looked towards the school, I thought, "some dumb little rat is gonna get it." At this moment, I spotted oh so poor little Timmy, picking his nose stupidly in the playground. So, as you probably would of guessed, I beat him to a quivering pulp! Wallowing himself, he refused to give me his lunch money, so what did I do? I simply scratched it out of his sweaty, greasy hands. At least it meant that I'd have some food for the day.